COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The night officer, Oakley Godwin, has resigned his job because of his health. He has given a two week notice and has agreed to stay on a little longer if he is needed. The night officer's job is a thankless one. Many people are ready to criticize a night officer but few people are willing to assist him. The critics stand back and say that the solutions to all of the problems can be solved by a certain course of action. At the same time there are people who frown on that course of action and they think that something else should be done. If we just look back to the town meeting last month, the arguments were long and loud for a curfew. The arguments were also long and loud against a curfew. The curfew article at town meeting is the only open discussion that I know of about that subject. I do not know exactly how a night officer would interpret the results or meaning of the vote. I do know that certain of his actions will be praised by some while the same actions are criticized by others.

The town purchased a new three inch diaphragm pump this last week. A pump is a piece of equipment that isn't used very often but it should be ready to operate when needed. The old pump worked about half the time and half the time it didn't. It is impossible to see and repair anything under a foot or so of muddy water. A diaphragm pump will not lose its suction when the strainer is taken out of the water or cleaned. It will prime itself when the strainer is put back in the water. The new pump was badly needed and I believe it will pay for itself in a short time.

The assessing work has been done on some of the 1965 valuations but it is still not too late to file a declaration if you have not already done so. Filing will assist the assessors and you will be taxed for the proper amount when the tax bills come out.

Christ's resurrection changed Mary from a mourner into a messenger. It changed Thomas from a doubter into a preacher and it changed Paul from a persecutor into a missionary. For early Christians the Easter event became an Easter experience: a cleansing, life-changing, transforming experience.

Today, nearly 2000 years later, that Easter event is still the greatest hope in a world of fear and confusion. — Dr. Paul S. James, American Tract Society.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

April 7, 1964

The Editor

Bethel Citizen

Bethel, Maine

Dear Editor:

Mrs. Sally Brown Bradley's recent letter expressed very well the sentiments of many of us relating to the future of Gould Academy.

However, after listening to Mr. William Throp, Trustee, give a very clear picture of the situation at this weeks Chamber of Commerce meeting, one gets a distinct impression of long and careful study by the Trustees and their committees of all possible alternatives, as well as consideration of the effect of change on the economic life of Bethel. I hope this report will be published for all to read.

The need for Gould's continued accreditation cannot be ignored. Apparently it is required that it become a comprehensive school to receive all types of students. One could raise the question as to whether the high school should serve the slow student, who would be more adept at manual skills. Maine does need Vocational schools. The curriculum offered by average high schools does not prepare for immediate employment for many. It must be remembered that Maine does lack job opportunities, and unless the industrial climate changes it will continue to lack them.

One could also raise the question as to the advisability of leaning on subsidies, for while this may be a way of more equitably sharing tax money for educational needs, thus benefiting the whole State, it still does take a good deal of the money making away from the local areas, and the more people involved on all levels, local, State and Federal, the greater the cost.

Legislation as Mrs. Bradley suggested, should be sought, which is satisfactory to the majority, and if existing legislation does not serve a given area well then the elected legislators from that area should work to change it.

After listening to Mr. Throp, I do feel that transfer to the University of Maine may be the best alternative, although as a Maine alumna I do wonder just how where the University is going to get all the money it requires—knowing the difficulties already confronting our legislature in trying to meet requests for appropriations. I certainly do need better educated people, but how much everyone willing to sacrifice to achieve this on the so-called Crash program basis?

One thing we who are alumni should be concerned about is the preservation of the name GOULD. Whatever final plan is accepted, that name should be retained, out of respect to Dr. Gould and his associates who included many of our ancestors.

There is some history linking Gould with the University which is interesting. In 1863 Merriam Fernald came to Gould as teacher and remained a year. He met Mary Lovejoy Heywood, daughter of Winslow Heywood, and married her, and in 1865 went to the then Maine State College (to become the University) as President remaining to 1871, and then pursued professional duties until 1879 when he again became President until 1893. May Fernald's mother died, and the second Mrs. Heywood was the widow Phoebe Kimball Russell who had had children—one Melissa, who married my great uncle, Charles Mason, and they were the parents of Trustee Emeritus Henry Ezra Mason, whose brother Charles was one of the University's early engineering graduates.

As an alumna of both Gould and the University (I was the first girl to go from Gould and Bethel to the University of Maine), I am glad to know that so much careful study has been given to the future of Gould and education in the area, but cannot help a feeling of great regret that the era of academics is past, since our well has served so many of us so well.

Respectfully, yours,

Elizabeth Mason Carter

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS:

"Nothing is permanent but taxes and death" the old adage goes. And to expand this a bit, we might add "nothing is as permanent as a permanent tax!"

Since 1941, every telephone customer in the United States has paid a "temporary" 10 per cent luxury tax.... which now amounts to roughly $1 billion a year.

The telephone has long since passed out of the luxury class and is as necessary to a home as water, gas and electricity. But the telephone is taxed and the other utilities are not.

"Hope springs eternal" is another familiar adage and every year since 1941 John Q. Public, hoping to reduce his phone bill, has looked to Congress to repeal this temporary tax. Although it has not been repealed, at least there was the hope that eventually it would be.

This year the President in his budget message to Congress has very quietly let John Q. Public have it on the chin. Hidden in the message is the phrase, "All taxes which are not removed this year become PERMANENT."

Fortunately, there is still time to do something about it. An aroused public can let the government know that it doesn't like unfair taxes—particularly PERMANENT ONES.

Write a personal letter TODAY. Have business men, clubs and organizations send letters asking their support in eliminating this tax.

Representative Tupper already has introduced a bill, known as HR 5782, which will remove this tax. Senator Smith is for having the tax removed.

Open House at Library

On April 9 Open House was held at the Andover Library on Pine Street under the supervision of the Andover Friday Club. Mrs. Merton Fox, president of the Club, gave the history of the library. In her view it was noted that in 1795 a Society was formed and each member gave 12 shillings toward the purchase of books. At this time it was recorded that the library was in a private home. The first register was dated 1820. In 1891 a special town meeting was called to form a library association. There were 52 subscribers requesting this meeting. At this time Stephen Cabot was appointed as a committee of one to draw up a constitution and by-laws. Mrs. Fox read these from the old records.

The first officers of the association were President, Henry V. Poor; vice president, Stephen Cabot; Secretary, Charles Chishman; treasurer, Hales W. Sutter. The Board of Trustees were Asa West, R. L. Meleher, S. S. Abbott, F. P. Thomas, Sam Betton and Stephen Cabot. The meetings were held at the Town House and the first librarian was G. U. Burns. Stephen Cabot was prepared and issued a circular which contains the objects of this organization and solicited funds. J. P. Whitney donated the sum of $1,000 and other interested persons donated $100 each.

The library in the Town House was continued until in 1943 the Library Association accepted the Universalist Church which was not being used. After repairs were made the state librarian came to Andover and helped sort out the books. Some were sold, some destroyed and in 1948 the transfer from the Town House (Hall) was made. In 1950 the building was painted and a new oil burner installed.

The one feature about this library is that the main room is in an octagonal shape. Timbers are in view and there is no ceiling. The rooms which ly varnished wood matched boards with a lovely center handker.

There are over 11,000 volumes today with 26 periodicals. The library is open two afternoons a week, Tuesday and Friday from 2 until 4:30. During the summer months it is open Friday evenings from 7-8:30 p. m.

The present officers of the Library Association are: president, William French; vice-president, Mrs. Merton Fox; secretary, Mrs. Ira Bodwell and treasurer, Mrs. Harold Hodsdon. The Board of Trustees are Mrs. Everett Dresser, Mrs. Robert J. Swain, Mrs. Ralph Hewey, Mrs. George Barlow, Mrs. Victor Akers and Harold Hodsdon. Mrs. Phillip Learned is librarian and Mrs. Victor Akers her assistant.

Two members of the Board of Trustees are elected each year for a term of three years.

The lower Hall has been used by the Girl Scouts and Art Classes.

The Andover Friday Club project this year is landscaping the library grounds. The annual Friday Club Flower Show has taken place in this interesting building.

The 33 in attendance signed the 1891 book which holds the constitution and by-laws.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the members.
